Is there anyone in the Broadmeadows area that can help catch some baby rabbits: Email from a concerned resident is here...."There are 4 baby bunnies living on the streets in Broadmeadows . I have asked around and have been advised that thy have been let go and free roaming with no owner.

I went past yesterday and one was hit by a car and passed. I really don't know what to do to help these babies . I have tried to catch them but they have been living n the street so can not catch. They are domesticated baby bunnies not wild bunnies

Hi Judi

As discussed here is a photo and some info on the little bunny I rescued from a less than desirable household.

This is Annie, She is approx 8-9 months old, I believe she is a Netherland dwarf x, Not desexed

When Annie first came home with us, she was very underweight and hadn't eaten or had water in days, potentially a week and we gradually have brought her to a better weight and she loves her food. Despite being in a high violence home, Annie is a beautiful, kind hearted bunny. She loves cuddles and head pats....

You only need to look on social media sites like Gumtree to see the wide neglect of this species.
